Sentence Fluency

All sentences are full sentences with a capital letter at the start and punctuation (. ? !) at the end. One statement, exclamation or question is one sentence

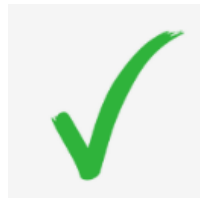

This is a dog.

“Hi Mia”, “My name is Lena” and “It has been a long time” are three different statements or exclamations. This means they are three different sentences.

Conventions

I need to correct the spelling for the same or a smaller number of words than in my previous writing assignment.

Teacher Feedback

Progress

You wrote in a clear order following the Rubric. First you greeted Mia, then told her about the film and invited her, then stated the day and time and finally how you would get there. This is something you said you found difficult before the assignment. Well done!

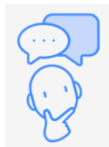

You are continuing to work hard to develop your spelling, and you are seeing the results. You were more confident and had fewer challenges with spelling. Great job!

Area for Growth

You would only say "My name is Lena." if you are meeting the person for the first time. You wouldn't say it for someone you know, even if you have not seen them for a long time. You can say "It's Lena." or "This is Lena."

Student Self-Reflection

"I like this assignment because I like my friend Mia. I like to play with her. I love Minions. I was very happy because I did this on my own. It was much faster. We practiced spelling lots of the words before the assignment. This helped me. I still find spelling very hard. I need help sometimes. I can keep practicing."
